‘Throw your fear into the air’ is a eurythmy performance by the fairy tale ensemble of the Eurythmeum Stuttgart, which deals with the pressing questions of our time.

The performance deals with questions about personal identity, dealing with the influences of society and many other topics. Under the motto ‘Be what you are - give what you have!’, the ensemble encourages young people in particular to face up to the challenges of the world, to believe in themselves and to act with courage.
